Data Analyst

Description

- Interprets data and information
- Uncovers trends, like whether people are getting enough exercise
- Prepares reports using graphs and tables to make data easier to understand
- Helps health departments make decisions to improve community health

Educational Requirements

Bachelor's degree in computer science, informatics, economics, statistics, mathematics, or a related field

Scan for more information on public health careers!

Epidemiologist

Scan for more information on public health careers!

Description

- Tracks and monitors the spread of diseases in groups of people, like outbreaks of the flu virus in the fall and winter
- Provides patient and public education

Educational Requirements

- Bachelor's degree and related experience, or
- Masters degree or equivalent experience in public health

Biostatistician

Scan for more information on public health careers!

Description

- Helps answer health-related questions by collecting and analyzing data and information

- Prepares reports using graphs and tables to make data easier to understand

Educational Requirements

- Bachelor's degree in mathematics, public health, or related field

- Masters' degree in biostatistics, computational biology, or related field

Public Health Engineer

Description

- Helps make sure the environment and public water are safe
- Works on projects related to water systems, drainage, and sanitation (like septic and sewage systems)
- Works with local and state health departments

Educational Requirements

- Bachelor's degree or higher in engineering or engineering technology

Scan for more information on public health careers!